

BARRY S. MCINERNEY

FOUNDER AND CEO, MCINERNEY CONSULTING GROUP

Barry McInerney is the Founder and CEO of McInerney Consulting Group, an advisory firm specializing in the areas of strategy, governance, and leadership. He writes and speaks on the topics of leadership, global investments and capital markets, and demographic and geo-economic trends. Barry also teaches Ethics in Business and the Economy at the Catholic University of America.

Barry currently serves on the Board of Equitable Life of Canada, chairs the Board of Directors of TOBAM, and chairs the University of Toronto's Rotman School of Management Dean's Advisory Board.

Barry retired as President and CEO of Mackenzie Investments in 2022. During his six-year tenure, he more than tripled assets under management, doubled earnings, experienced record sales, and revitalized the culture, diversity, and purpose of Mackenzie Investments with a modern, future-oriented business model and leadership style.

Prior to joining Mackenzie Investments, Barry was Co-CEO of BMO Global Asset Management, responsible for BMO's asset management business in the U.S., Europe, Middle East, and Asia Pacific. These businesses grew ten-fold via organic growth and several significant acquisitions during his seven years of leadership.

Prior to BMO, Barry was the Managing Director for Russell Investments' institutional asset management business in the U.S. and Canada, and Russell's global consulting business. Barry began his career at Mercer Inc., where he held a number of senior leadership positions including founding President of Mercer Global Investments in the U.S. and globally, and President of Mercer Investment Consulting in the U.S. and Canada.

Barry is a graduate of the MBA and B. Comm. programs at the Rotman School of Management. He also holds the Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA), Fellow of the Society of Actuaries (FSA), and Fellow of the Canadian Institute of Actuaries (FCIA) designations.
